Disclaimer and Signature

As a shareholder with the farm, I agree and understand that they cannot be held liable for unexpected seasonal mishaps that might occur. I understand each week's produce will be different and that exact crop varieties and quantities cannot be guaranteed. Harvest may be affected by unexpected events, insects, weather, nature, and other acts of God.

I am committing to a CSA. My fees help cover the costs of labor, seed, and equipment to grow produce.

It is my responsibility to pick up my weekly share of food from Earth Root Farm during the designated pick-up time window and location. Late or missed weekly pick-ups are not eligible for credit, replacement, or storage. If I cannot pick up my weekly share, I understand that the vegetables continue to grow and still need to be harvested. It is my responsibility to choose one of the following two options:

1. Make arrangements to have someone pick up my weekly produce share

2. Notify the farm that I would like to donate my weekly produce share to a non-profit party of the farm's choosing (i.e. school, food bank, and shelter).

I understand that Earth Root Farm does not offer refunds; however, I am aware that I can cancel my membership at any time for a prorated value. I must contact the farm by email and the cancelation email must include full name, email address, and physical address.

In order to provide accurate service, Earth Root Farm communicates with its members primarily through email. Updates will include recipes, special events on the farm, and policy changes. I understand it is my responsibility to open and read these emails (including payment notices) to stay informed. Please add info@earthrootfarm.com to a safe senders list. If my email address or any other contact information changes, I will email info@earthrootfarm.com or call (203) 244 7245.
